HARDING SAYS VOTE FOR COX

What you make out of Senator Harding's latest speech on the League of Nations depends on whether you read it simply and straightforwardly or minutely and quibblingly.

If you read it simply and straightforwardly, Senator Harding declares himself an irreconcilable; says he is unconditionally opposed to ratifying the treaty or the covenant in any form, with or without reservations or amendments, and that, in so many words, he invites all persons who favor the league to vote the Democratic ticket, and pray God to protect you against the consequences of your folly. If this is what he means—and only a quibbler can find any other meaning than this—then all of us who believe in the League of Nations are requested by Senator Harding to vote for Governor Cox. To refuse this invitation is to accuse Senator Harding of being a subtle and insincere person, whose real meaning must be sought, not in the apparent and simple intent of his blunt words, but in a recondite analysis of concealed phrases, through which it is possible to wriggle to a meaning exactly contrary to the apparent one.

Unfortunately, any attempt at exact reading of the speech is so baffling as to lead almost to this conclusion. Senator Harding nowhere says that he would object to ratifying the covenant, if it were so modified as to remove its objectionable features, or that he would object to acquiring membership in the existing organization of the existing league, provided its paper compass could be amended, by the method prescribed therein, so as to remove these features. He does not say that he would do this and he does not say that he would not do it. And yet this is exactly the only question on which any one has the slightest curiosity. Read with precision, Senator Harding's speech answers every question except the only one which anybody has ever asked. He says he would not favor ratifying the treaty with the covenant exactly as it is. He says he would not favor ratifying it with the reservations which Cox proposes, because these do not remove the objectionable features. But he does not say that he would or would not favor it with other reservations or amendments which do remove these objectionable features. And he does indignantly deny that he should have to stand hat in hand in order to become a member of the league. He favors "rejecting" and "keeping out" of the league, and yet denies that there will be any difficulty about our going in. Only he acknowledges that he is not bright enough to show just how we should do whatever we do and promises to call together a group of intelligent men to find out.

So the only question that anybody has ever asked, or cares anything about, is not answered. Exactly and precisely, the whole speech means just nothing at all. We defy any one of accuracy of thought and language to determine from this speech definitely whether President Harding would or would not permit the United States (a President alone can prevent it) to enter the League of Nations now in operation, provided its covenant were so amended as to remove his present objections to it. Either he is mentally incapable of answering this question directly, or else he is too subtle to do so.

But bluntly and squarely, if we are to take the thing on its face, without seeking excuses in these minutiae, the Republican candidate has made the League of Nations the issue, and has invited all who wish the United States to join the league on any terms to vote the Democratic ticket. Not to accept this invitation is to accuse Senator Harding of being a man who either can not say what he means, or else who deliberately makes himself appear to mean one thing when an ingenious enough quibbler can find out that he means the other. Pro-league Republicans must either accept Harding's invitation to vote for Cox, or else support Harding on the ground that they believe that he is an insincere, evasive, and quibbling sophist, who does not mean that invitation.

ENCOURAGE SPORTSMANSHIP

When baseball is reorganized so that no taint of suspicion shall attach to the national game, the reorganization will in all probability have to be from the top downward as well as from the bottom upward. Of course, gambling must be rooted out, but gambling is a secret and furtive thing, and mere accidental exposures will not be sufficient to keep the game clean. A soil must be created in which the noxious weed will not grow—and that is an admittedly difficult thing to do.

The surest way to keep the game clean is by the development and cultivation of the instinct of sportsmanship. And this instinct must be developed in the magnates, as the parlance of the sporting writers has it, as well as in the players. It is idle, of course, to suggest that the commercial motive be kept out of the game. Baseball is highly capitalized and millions of money are invested in grounds and players. This is an obvious necessity. But the necessary business aspect must be subordinate to the sportsmanship, for the game's sake, after all.

There has been too much of a tendency on the part of owners to reduce what is essentially a sport to the rules and practices of business of doubtful ethical import. Players are bought and sold like chattels. A man without his knowledge or consent may be traded to another team, and if he feels that he has been demoted in the process, this cannot help but affect his morale.

This is absolutely no palliation for the men who sold their souls in the world series—who sold out their fellow players and the public. And it does not appear that any of them had even the poor excuse of any objection to his personal treatment, but if the dominant atmosphere of the national sport is commercialism, rather than sportsmanship, it is easier for the gamblers and the crooks to find weak or venal material to work upon.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY

The appeal of the Fresno County Historical Society for the good will of the entire community and for the active support of those who have the small amount of time that may be necessary for active membership should receive hearty approval from the citizens of the county. The need of historical archives is increasingly evident as the generation which gave California to the Union and Fresno to California fades into the distance. While the county does not yet possess the physical equipment for such an historical museum as it should have, in the natural course of events this will soon be provided through the erection of an adequate county library, or some other form of institution. In the meantime, the human interest in historical matters and the disappearance of the means for satisfying it are parallel factors that we must appreciate. We cannot wait for buildings, before we house either libraries or museums. We must do what we can now, and provide the architecture later.

The work that has been done by the historical society during its two years of existence is a warranty of continued interest by the public. Cooperation should take the form specially of individual contributions of pictures, letters, documents, such as will in the natural course of events be lost through family changes and these should be given as soon as possible into the permanent trust that the society provides.

NOT AS REPUBLICANS

James M. Cox of Ohio and Franklin Roosevelt of New York and James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois and some other candidates and speakers not being sufficient to illuminate Democratic purposes in this campaign, one George White adds his mite of logic now and then. Mr. White is chairman of the Democratic national committee, whose function is considered to be that of seeing that there is sufficient in the treasury to pay for Mr. Cox's special train and the other legitimate expenses of a national campaign. But these duties do not keep him busy enough. So he helps out with the publicity every now and then. His latest is a come-back on the resignation from the government of Major Benedict Crowell, who has been assistant secretary of War. Mr. Crowell quits in order to assist in the Harding campaign, and declares that the United States lacks an efficient administration.

Mr. White thinks it is sufficient contentment to point out that Crowell always has been a Republican, and that, as he has been a part of the administration, he should be ashamed to point out that it has been inefficient. Perhaps. Perhaps Franklin K. Lane should have been ashamed to leave the administration which he emphatically declared was inefficient, but he did. And everyone, Democratic and Republican alike, seems to have agreed with him. Perhaps Mr. Crowell, as one of the several assistants to Secretary Baker, should have been responsible for the whole administration. After Mr. Lansing's experience, however, he may have thought it inadvisable to attempt this.

It is hardly enough for Mr. White to point out that Mr. Crowell is a Republican and always has been a Republican, to account for his leaving the administration to become a campaigner for Mr. Harding. In the usual course of human events, no such thing would happen. Ordinary personal loyalty, as we find it in men fit to hold such positions binds them to the administration they have joined. For instance, of the many thousands of Democrats who went as loyalists into the Civil War, a very large part, illogical as it may seem, became by the end of the war, Republicans. And of the thousands of Republicans who as loyal citizens, have become Dollar-Year men in the recent war, very many, even though they still call themselves Republicans, will be found voting as supporters of the administration this November. And in fact, if Cox and Roosevelt are to have any chance for success, they know that they must obtain the votes of such men, as well as the votes of many thousands of independents. To explain that Crowell, or men like him, are fighting Cox and supporting Harding because they are "Republicans," is conceding defeat at the start. The fact of course is that men are deserting the administration not because it is Democratic, but because of what it is personally; because from the top down it has been run in a way which has been displeasing to them, displeasing in a way that men as politically powerful and as personally able as Franklin K. Lane could not help.

Sixteen engineers in the employ of the government of India are on a tour of northwestern lumber camps and mills to study forestry methods in Montana. They are traveling under the direction of C. Gilbert Rogers, director of forestry for the Indian government. After spending a month in Montana, the party will visit Oregon, Washington and British Columbia, later going to California and then to the express swamps of Louisiana and other southern states. The engineers are not technical forestry men, but have been selected as a nucleus for a forest engineering branch of the Indian government. All were in the British forces during the world war.

Admiral Bristol, American high commissioner in Constantinople, has urged the state department to appoint an American member on the commission of the international body that will govern shipping in the Near East, supplementing the similar request of firms doing business in that part of the world. American participation is provided for in the Turkish treaty, although no provision is made for United States representation on the financial commission.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

CURING A BOLSHEVIK

Gettrufsky lacked both pelf and fame,
His intellect was weak;
And consequently he became
A howling Bolshevnik
Who launched a curse on all who had
More industry than he did,
And vowed all governments were bad
Where honest men succeeded.

His fancied wrongs he sought to right
With pistol and with dirk,
With shrapnel and with dynamite
And everything but work
He robbed and pillaged all around,
He burgled everywhere,
Until he cracked a crib and found
A million roubles there.

A million roubles all in gold,
Which tidy little sum
Served, on the instant to remould
This Bolshevnik bum.
No more he deals in dynamite.
The burden of his song
Is that the governments are right,
And Bolshevniks are wrong.

For once you give a Bolshevnik
A goodly store of pelf,
There a t-e-h-e will only seek
To keep it for himself.
Infinitely it works a cure
For all the ills that ail 'em.
But there's a way that's still more sure
And simpler—just to jail 'em.

READY FOR A BOOM.

The Palm Beach hotels will be crowded this winter. It will be cheaper to stay in 'em than to buy real in the North.

NO HOPE.

Even the prospect of the Eighteenth amendment wouldn't do the browers any good. Everybody knows how to make his own, now.

PERFECTLY SAFE.

There is no danger that the hand that rocks the cradle will rock the boat.

OFF TO EUROPE TO DIRECT ACTIVITIES OF THE RED CROSS

Miss Clara D. Noyes, Director of Nursing of the American Red Cross has sailed for Europe on an inspection tour of nursing activities of the Red Cross nursing.

TOKYO, Oct. 6.—(By The Associated Press.)—Special dispatches from Tokyo, Oct. 6, say a Korean threw a bomb at the police station in Fusan September 6. The chief of police and bomb thrower were wounded seriously. News of the incident had been suppressed. Address from Manchuria says that 500 young bandits and some Koreans raided Hui Chou Saturday. The Japanese consulate was burned and in the fighting, seven persons were killed and twelve injured, including one Japanese.

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 6.—Bids for the entire stock of the surplus materials, equipment and bunks on the Pacific Coast of the shipping board will be received until October 15, as a result of protests by prospects by prospective bidders who objected to the time limit set at last Friday and who said they had not been informed of the details of the board's appraisal. H. M. Miller, director of the supply and sales division, announced the extension of the bid date today.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 6.—The Rev. Albert Vogel, 123 years old, died in Jeannette, Pa., today. He held Methodist charges in Ohio, Indiana, Michigan and Pennsylvania. He was born in Germany and came to the United States in 1829.

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 6.—Arbitration, instead of a duel, has been arranged by agents of Honorio Pueyrredon, Argentine foreign minister, who challenged Benito Villalobos, president of the Senate, because of differences over their respective official functions. It is understood Pueyrredon's resignation will not be accepted by President Illigoyen.

SOILED spats just ruin the appearance of any costume. And they are so unnecessary. You can cleanse them at home—so easily—in such a few minutes—without shrinking or fading or discoloring—if you just use Ivory Soap Flakes.

Just pour warm water on a few of these quick-lathering flakes of genuine Ivory Soap—dip a soft brush in the suds—and gently brush off the soil. The wonderful Ivory suds moves dirt so quickly—and so safely, too, because it's pure and mild and harmless, as you always have known Ivory Soap to be. Use these flakes that you know you can depend on for keeping all your dainty things—silk, lilies and wool—pretty and fresh as new.

LABOR ELECTION NAMES LEAVITT VICE-PRESIDENT

Lane Contest Is Decided
By Vote of 21st
Conclave

Candidates Withdraw to Expedite Work of Convention

With the contest narrowed in one office, vice president of the eighth district, by the withdrawal of J. C. Harter, nominee for vice president in the third district, and W. McCallan Cook, candidate in the fourth district, L. B. Leavitt scored a victory over H. T. Gravitt at the election held yesterday morning.

The vote was taken yesterday morning, the names of the delegates being called and ballots issued, later being tabulated. In accordance with the provisions of the constitution under which the State Federation of Labor operates, the vote of the delegates will be made public in copies of the proceedings.

Harter withdrew his name as a candidate for vice president in the third district through the chair at yesterday morning's session while W. McCallan Cook, speaking on the floor, stated that the organization work which he was carrying on did not necessitate his holding the office and he therefore withdrew in favor of his opponent, G. A. Deak.

The passage of a resolution at the session yesterday morning forming a new district in the state and therefore entitling that district to the president, precipitated a discussion on the floor as to whether the office was to be filled at this session. The report of the committee on the floor, stating that the office was to be filled at this session, was adopted.

The resolution was adopted. Number 58 on the ballot and provision adding a thirteenth district from Redding to the Oregon state line giving that district a vice president. It was presented by Ival Whitney of Timberworkers' Union, No. 14 of Wood.

With the election of President Daniel C. Murphy and Paul C. Schenck as secretary made unanimous, the following is the list of officers chosen by the Twenty-first annual convention of the California State Federation of Labor:

First District (Riverside south to state line), E. F. Nelson.

LABOR DENOUNCES TIJUANA; PETITION VICE SUPPRESSION

Convention Urges New Treaty With Mexico to Stop Immoral Traffic; Many New Laws Are Sought

With but one opposing vote, a resolution was adopted yesterday afternoon by the California Federation of Labor, denouncing the immoral conditions found in the border city of Tijuana, Mexico, and calling on the American state department to negotiate a treaty for the suppression of the vice, "insofar as it affects this country."

The resolution was introduced by E. J. Nelson and Frank Thomas, San Diego delegates, and received the approval of the resolution committee. The authors of the measure declared the immoral depravity of Tijuana was threatening the safety and the sanctity of the homes of San Diego, and that officials reported a great part of the crimes committed in the California city were directly due to the unchecked rampart and commercial vice of the Mexican city.

Condemns Individuals. The resolution carries the report that Americans recently invested a huge sum in Tijuana concessions with the intention of continuing these "immoral conditions" and condemning these individuals and their intentions.

"We condemn the selfishness of Tijuana, its institutions and the government officials who have invested their money in that immoral hell-hole, and we further call on duty-oriented officials, both city, county and national, to do their full duty to suppress this demoralizing traffic over our borders, no matter how wealthy or powerful the individuals concerned may be," continues the resolution.

"We hereby petition the State Department of our United States government to at once negotiate with the Central Government of the Republic of Mexico for the purpose of suppressing such vices, insofar as it affects our country."

A resolution giving the convention sanction and protection to the work of the newly organized labor press association, although reported favorably by the committee, aroused lengthy debate. Its opponents centered their objections of giving an endorsement to an "association" containing in its membership privately-owned papers for whose action labor might not approve.

The resolution was defended by Chairman "Tom" of the committee, representatives of the press association, including Francis Drake of Los Angeles, president, and several delegates. It was finally adopted by a large majority.

Aid for Service Men. A unanimous vote was given a lengthy resolution, offered by Chairman Tracy, pledging labor's fullest cooperation in the disabled ex-service men and to the Federal Board for Vocational Education and calling for special consideration and preference to these "heroes" in pursuing their courses of training in "shops and on the job."

Whereas, Society owes to these men a debt which can neither be estimated in terms of money nor paid in measures of praise or applause;

Whereas, These disabled men would in many cases become imbeciles and liabilities upon society unless in the ordinary savings-bank;

Whereas, The Federal government has made provisions for these men to be educated, apprenticed and trained, free of cost to them, in the various professions, trades and occupations according to their several circumstances; and that they and their dependents shall be maintained and sustained at the government's expense during such preparation for future life;

Whereas, The most suitable training for some vocations is available only on the job, where instruction can be given concurrently with practice;

Whereas, The Federal board for vocational education, has expressed its policy that each disabled man shall be returned to as nearly his former pursuit as is compatible with his disability and most promising to his future economic success; and that all training will be thorough and designed in each case to fit the man with the ability to earn the prevailing wage in the occupation to which he is trained; and

Whereas, It has come to our attention that some of these men who have made such sacrifices for the common good, or security can best profit by training in the "shops and on the job" to become:

Resolved, That the California State Federation of Labor, in convention assembled, does hereby pledge its fullest cooperation to these disabled men and the Federal board of vocational education, in carrying out the great work; and be it further

Resolved, That disabled ex-service men entitled to training under the direction of the Federal board shall be given special consideration and preference in pursuing courses of training.

Eight resolutions concerning the postal clerks and providing for the establishment of a court where the cases of dismissed employees could be advanced were up for consideration at the close of the session yesterday.

President Daniel L. Murphy, stated that the resolutions were to be considered one by one instead of in a body, as the chairman of the legislative committee reported. But the union for adjustment, cut short the consideration after the first resolution in the group had been adopted.

This resolution, which its proponents said was substantiated by testimony from workers involved, protested against the alleged violations of the state law by the post office department, in allowing women clerks to work more than eight hours a day in post offices or to stand for any length of time.

Favor 44-Hour Week. "Unqualified and hearty support" is called for from all labor in backing the movement for the reduction of hours for a 44-hour week in all commercial printing establishments in a resolution adopted on this subject, which was submitted without debate.

A resolution introduced by the tenement's delegation affirming labor's approval of the government's credit system of war loans and recommending it as "more germane to the needs of wage-earners than direct taxation," was adopted by a large majority.

The California State Federation of Labor, in convention assembled, adopted the following resolutions:

Resolved, That the California State Federation of Labor, in convention assembled, does hereby pledge its fullest cooperation to these disabled men and the Federal board of vocational education, in carrying out the great work; and be it further

Labor Asks For Kickless Crank For Automobiles

The twenty-first annual convention of the California State Federation of Labor, favoring a kickless automobile crank.

And what is more they are going to ask the legislature to enact an amendment to the workmen's compensation bill making it mandatory for employers to install kickless automobile cranks.

This action was taken by the convention yesterday afternoon when the resolution presented by M. H. Cline of Teamsters Union No. 55 of San Francisco, was adopted. The resolution calls attention to the fact that employers have failed to make provision for the safe cranking of automobiles and that this provision should be added to present safety requirements.

Cadillac Motor Cars Positively Will Not Be Reduced in Price

There have been many reports and rumors that the price of the Cadillac car would be reduced from $100 to $1300. These reports are false and without any foundation whatsoever. We have a telegram signed by the President of the Cadillac Motor Car Company stating very positively that there will be absolutely no price reduction on Cadillac cars, at least before May 1st, and then prices must be governed by manufacturing conditions at that time.

JAPANESE SEND PLEA GOMPERS ON ALIEN BILL

Labor Convention Tells
President of Stand on Amendment No. 1
A. F. of L. Chief Wires
Here For Complete
Information

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, has been appealed to by the Japanese of California to forestall, if possible, any action by the State Federation of Labor convention on Amendment No. 1 on the September election bill, the anti-alien law.

A telegram from President Gompers, containing a copy of the appeal and asking for information, was sent to the convention yesterday afternoon and precipitated a discussion which terminated in the nomination of a special committee consisting of Paul Scharenberg, Seth H. Brown and Assistant Secretary Mitchell to draft a reply.

The reply, approved by the delegates later in the session, while expressing sympathy for the Japanese, has the particular intention of labor to vote or the stringent land-holding measures, designed to end Oriental ownership and control of agricultural lands in defiance of the present law on the statute books.

The reading of the Gompers reply, incorporating as it did the plea from a Japanese organization, sent to represent 10,000 farmers, caused a sharp rise in the temperature and several minutes' discussion followed.

The reply from the venerable labor leader was as follows:

"Am just in receipt of the following telegram: 'Initiative measure No. 1, called the anti-alien law, on ballot at the coming election in California, which will take away from the Japanese the right to vote and to hold land for agricultural purposes. Taking away the right of livelihood from any class of people is, we believe, a fundamental principle of honest labor.'"

"This proposed law is unjust and inhuman. There is a labor convention in session at Fresno. Now we ask you, in the name of justice and humanity, to have your good influence to have this convention go on record on initiative measure No. 1, which will appear on ballot at election of November 2. We know you are always courageously stood for justice. This is the reason we appeal to you now. Farmers' Protective League, composed of 10,000 Japanese farmers, 258 Jackson St., Los Angeles."

"Will you please promptly advise me regarding the above matter?" "SAMUEL GOMPERS."

"The convention answer, which received applause lasting for more than a minute, follows:

"Pending initiative on Japanese land-holding, favorable recommendation of executive council, and undoubtedly will be approved by convention now in session. Copy of initiative and copy of arguments for and against follow by mail."

"PAUL SCHARENBERG, Secretary, State Labor Convention."

"Committee memorandum of costs was stricken out in the case of George Blair against John Barton Payne."

CONVENTION VOTES AGAINST ADULT WAGE-SCALE BOARD

Passes Resolution Proposed By Fresno Fruit
Workers Seeking to Abolish Setting of Minimum Wage Scales

Proposed by the Fruit Workers Union of Fresno and Santa Clara, a resolution was adopted at the convention of the California State Federation of Labor yesterday morning seeking to discourage the appointment of adult wage-scale commissions and abolish present bodies.

In urging the passage of the resolution, introduced by the Fresno committee in its report, the speaker favored self-determination of the wage scale by the labor problems in the fruit belt. They pointed to the fact that foreign labor has invaded the field and that the wage scales set as minimum have been taken as mandatory by the employers and some of the not well informed non-white labor. Consequently, speakers pointed out, the problem of organization has been doubly hard and the formation of unions and organization work among the fruit and vegetable workers has been met with opposition.

To Seek Own Salvation.
Following is the text of the resolution as proposed by Jasper Taylor and Ernest M. Cline of Fruit Workers Union No. 1846 of Fresno:

Whereas, through statutory enactments and agreements, other than by the labor movement, wage scale commissions to set the wages of men and women employed in various industries throughout this state, is against labor and unworkable, tending to discourage the organization of employees and the trust of their fate in a quasi-independent body, namely, a wage scale commission, which very often is dominated by the employer's interest; therefore, be it

Resolved, By this convention in regular session assembled, that we make great effort to discourage the appointment of wage scale commissions mentioned above, and endeavor to have the present adult wage scale commissions abolished, to the end that labor may see the necessity of placing dependence in its own organization and confidence in its own organization, and in taking the floor to champion the cause of the resolution and to explain the conditions which obtained in the fruit belt of this district. Delegate Howard Strangsholm of the Fresno union, stated that at a hearing before the wage scale commission in this city on June 28, 1920, the union refused to abide by the decision of the board, not then delivered. He stated that the scale was set for the whole state and while the 62 cents an hour minimum represented a dollar a day increase over the previous year's scale, it was a low wage comparatively speaking. The scale as then announced was 57 cents for the first 8 hours, 72 cents an hour for the eighth to twelve hours and 85 cents after twelve hours.

Favors Rejection.
Delegate Sheldon of the Cooks and Waiters Union of Oakland spoke favoring the rejection of the resolution, stating that he did not deem it proper for the convention to ask the rejection of any part of the welfare commission work and pointing to the fact that the commission had done for the women and children workers of the state. He stated that the wages set were not mandatory except for minimum scale, and that he favored the unions to utilize collective bargaining as they saw fit.

In reply delegates stated that the resolution was introduced against the work of the welfare commission, but rather against the appointment

WALLIS SPEAKS TONIGHT ABOUT THE ABORIGINES

Fresno County Historical Society Opens Season
of 1920-21
All Citizens Urged to Attend and Take Part in Proceedings

LT. WILSON D. WALLIS

Of the Fresno Junior College Faculty, noted writer on historical subjects, who will speak tonight at the public library.

Tonight is both the opening evening for the winter program of the Fresno County Historical Society and the occasion for a contribution to its discussion by Wilson D. Wallis, of the Fresno Junior College faculty.

Mr. Wallis has consented to offer a discussion of the problem presented to anthropologists by the Indians of California. By many, this race has been considered as having no social customs, and as being a primitive people. But the work that has been done by language students and experts in folk lore and tribal customs has developed a wealth of understanding of the people of this race.

The work to be carried on by the historical society, including agitation for the preservation of landmarks and the amassing of rapidly fading knowledge of the people and activities of Fresno county, is to be continued during the coming winter with all the assistance that can be obtained from active membership. It is hoped that all interested citizens will attend and take part in the meetings tonight and throughout the season. The session has been called for 8 o'clock, in the assembly room at the county library, on Broadway near Merced street.

Artificial Eyes

Unfortunately patients are conscious of the fact that an artificial eye produces a want of animal magnetism, destroys the harmony in size and color when compared to the good eye.

From our stock of thousands of eyes, we can select just the one that is comfortable, the exact size and color that will round out the features, remove the conscious feeling and produce a natural improvement in your personal appearance.

FURNITURE TO REMAIN FIXED

No Reduction in Prices
For Long Time, Dealers
Are Told

Furniture will show no reduction of prices for a long time to come, according to a statement made by J. L. Young, president of the Retail Furniture Association of the United States.

The decision against reducing prices on furniture is based on a searching investigation by a committee representing the National Council of Furniture Manufacturers Association and the Retail Furniture Association of the United States.

Every piece of furniture turned out by the 400 factories having membership in the national organization is said to represent 80 per cent labor, and this is said to have been a determining factor in the decision of the committee to reduce prices. The wages of more than 1,000,000 employees would be disrupted by any reduction at this time, according to association officials.

The manufacturing by reduction say that a reduction is desirable, and that as soon as prices can be reduced without cutting labor, furniture will be marked down.

In Department 3, judgment for the plaintiff was awarded C. H. Mitchell against the Reno school district et al.
